THE CHARGE OF BURGLARY SUSTAINED

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.) SOMERSET, May 30.—The grand jury this morning returned a true bill against Jackson and Marshall Sullivan, Decatur Tasker and Charles J. Lewis for assault and battery with intent to kill old Christian Yoder, who made the intermation. It is forbidden by the rules or creed of his sect to go to law, and the much-abused Amish patriarch could not be persuaded in the first instance to make the charge of burglary against the four men. That was done by Hugh Miller, a merchant of Summit Postoffice, adjacent to Mr. Yoder's house, It was a very difficult matter to get Mr. Yoder to make this last charge, but after he had been in court for a time his feelings became sufficiently stirred up, and he con-sented to have the information drawn up in his name. The gentleman who made the information for the first charge, Mr. Miller, is the McClellandtown robbers, and he was on the point of having Tasker and Lewis arrested as two of the gang who had been guilty of so many depredations in Fayette county and the neighboring portions of West Virginia and Maryland. He had learned they were in Somerset county, but before he could make the final move the crime against Yoder had been committed and the men had left.

HILL DROPPED FROM THE CASE this morning, but at the same time had him held under $1,000 bail to answer to the next regular term of court, the charge being an accessory to the burglary at Yoder's after the fact and a receiver of stolen goods. Argument as to whether there is sufficient evidence to hold him for trial is to be made at the Argument Court immediately following the present term of the Criminal Court.

Tasker and Lewis are the other two of the de-fendants who were placed on the stand to-day in their own defense, and there was no attempt in their own defense, and there was no attempt by their counsel to prove an alibi—or for that matter, anything else in their behalf. A number of witnesses were produced, however, to show that on the night of the Yoder outrage the two Sullivans were helping to celebrate the birthday of their sister, Mrs. Dinsmore. One of the witnesses was Henry Sullivan, brother of two of 'he defendants. He is learning the trade of a moider at Uniontown. On the cross-examination General Koonts, to destroy his credibility in the eyes of the jury, forced him to admit that he had served 6% years in the Western Penitentary for robbery. Sullivan, were were were always and some changes are necessary in her machinery before she can come up to the conditions of the contract. Even if these requirements were weight to go into commission. She has demonstrated, it is said, that she is an excellent boat, but has not yet fulfilled the contract requirements, and some changes are necessary in her machinery before she can come up to the conditions of the contract. Even if these requirements were Western Penitentiary for robbery. Sullivan, the was but 17 years old at the time, was one wite gang who had been employed by a man to rob him. They were to have received $200 each to rob him of $2,500. He, of course, was to have the bulk of the money.

Jackson Sullivan, when on the stand, confessed that he was another of the party who robbed the paymaster. He also served six and a half years in the penitentiary for it.

HAD A REFINING INFLUENCE. It is a somewhat remarkable fact that his penitentiary experience seemed to have a refining influence on Jackson Sullivan. In neatness of dress and smartness of manners he is a strong contrast to the other defendants. His brother Henry also seemed to have profited by his incarceration, and the two, so far as dress his incarceration, and the two, so far as dress and manners go, are a credit to Warden Wright's academy.

The majority of the witnesses who went on the stand for the defense admitted having heard the four principal defendants and Hill spoken of as the McClellandtown gang. Joseph Paul was the only witness, not a relative of the Sullivans, who was at Mrs. Dinsmore's birthday party and saw the Sullivan brothers there. Peter Guseman, the only other person there beside the Sullivans, is their second cousin and stepfather of Tasker. He knew nothing of beside the Sullvans, is their second cousin and stepfather of Tasker. He knew nothing of Tasker on the fatal date, and no evidence was given by anyone to show it or the whereabouts of Lewis. He had lived a mile from Cool Spring, the reputed headquarters of the Mc-Clellandtown gang, but had never heard of it as such until he saw it in the newspapers after the arrests.

Jackson Sullivan, in his testimony, said that after leaving the penitentiary he went to Alabama, where he remained three months, then lived in Cincinnati for three months, went to Michigan and worked at making brooms for about three weeks, and, not liking the work, went to Chicago; after looking around there for a couple of days he returned bome to Fay-ette county; hunting has been his principal occupation since then. In this way he ac-

THE LOADED FOWLING PIECE which he said was his, found at Hill's house, but he didn't explain what kind of game he expected to bring down with the 20 slugs in addition to the bird-shot found in each shell. He also denied that it was cocked when found. He and his brother Marshall denied having been in the neighborhood of Yoder's on the night of the crime, and located themselves, instead, at Mrs. Dusmore's birthday party, saying they remained there over Sunday.

Jackson Sullivan and Hill denied the barrieaded condition of the latter's house when the cades condition of the latter's noise when the arrests were made, or that any resistance had been contemplated. They also denied the language attributed to Tasker by Sheriff Kyle, who stated that when he was being handcuffed to Hill he exclaimed: "I wish we had fought until we had died. We had intended to, but the women made ny surrender."

volvers found at Hill's house was his, after trying hard to dodge a direct answer.

Hill denied that when his house was surrounded and he and his wife came out on the porch that he wanted to get away from its immediate neighborhood because those inside were going to shoot. He said that his language at that time referred to the persons outside who, he feared, intended to fire on the house.

Hill said all the parties at his house when the arrests were made were merely there on a visit. The Sullivan's are his uncles; their sieter, his aunt, was one of those present beside his wife. Lewis and Tasker and a Miss Dests. They were not staying there, he claimed, and Lewis and Tasker had only been there once before yesterday. However, Mrs. Hill admitted Lewis and Tasker to be

He was very ignorant concerning the bundles they brought to his house, and hadn't known that the stockings identified yesterday by Miss Baker were there. Marshall Sullivan admitted that 15 years ago he was in juli in Somerset for eight months for assault and battery, and was twice aided to escape.

The defendants placed on the stand fiatly denied any knowledge of the Yoder outrage. Tasker was not put on the stand to disprove the language alleged to have been used by him when being handcuffed to Hill.

The Commonwealth labored in its cross-exmination to show that the witnesses for the defense were biased by relationship or other connection with the prisoners, and to thus cast denies or their evidence.

connection with the prisoners, and to thus cast doubt on their evidence.

Mr. Uhe opened for the defense after the testimony was all in. He was followed by District Attorney Biesecker, who analyzed the testimony. Mr. Holbert closed for the defense and Mr. Kooser for the prosecution. General Kooniz, for the prosecution, made no address, He has been occupying his time during the trail in examining and cross-examining the uit-feeses.

a verdict of guilty against the two Sullivans, Lewis and Tasker. Their counsel will move for a new trial in the morning. It is believed the men will not be tried on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill, but that it will be held over them in terrorem to keep them out of the county.

against the Nicely brothers, of the murder and robbery of Henry Umberger, was taken up. The defendants pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried separately.

This murder took place in Jenner township. The principal witnesses for the prosecution are Miss Ella Stearn and Nannie Horner, the latter aged about 19 years. They are not permitted to go out without a male escort for lear of foul play. The relatives of the accused men who are here look like educated and refined people. Something like $5,000 in money and bonds was the amount of the robbery.

The grand jury is engaged in weighing the evidence against George and David Shaulis, charged with the murder of their father, an agred man, and their youthful stepmother. The latter was shot and the former hung—to give an appearance, it is alleged, of murder and suicide.

Naval Officers Do Not Apprehend Any Trouble in the Behring Sen-The Available Force of the United States on the Pacific Const.

WASHINGTON, May 30 .- The warlike spatches from British Columbia with reone of those who interested themselves in gard to expected trouble between the United States and Great Britain over the Behring Sea seal fisheries are generally discredited by officers of the Navy Department. It is pointed out that no officer of rank suffi-ciently high to make him acquainted with the English Government's purposes would under any circumstances be so foolish as to talk in the manner stated in the dispatch from Victoria, B. C. A prominent naval officer, in speaking on the subject, said that if such a talk did occur the speaker was some subaltern who had drunk too much beer and lost his head, and had by high talk matter with all his might, and led the party that made the arrests of the eight men who have been on trial.

The charge on which the two Sull'sans and Tasker and Lewis were tried is burglary. The other four were charged with being accessories before the fact. This forencon, after the evidence was all in, Grant Dean was given his freedom on a nolle prosequit. The bulk of the freedom on a nolle prosequit. The bulk of the freedom on a nolle prosequit. Tasker and Lewis were tried is burglary. The other four were charged with being accessories before the fact. This forenoon, after the evidence was all in, Grant Dean was given he red against him was in the form of things he had said to others, and it was shown that the greater part, or perhaps all of it, had been spoken in jest. The testimony as to his former good character was entirely in his favor. His intimacy with Marshall Sullivan was because the latter was married to his foster-sister.

The evidence against William B. Hill was also of a character that failed to prove him an accessory to the Yeder outrage before the fact, but it indicated very strongly that he was on a friend,y footing with the four against whom the principal charge was made, that they visited his house and stored things there concerning which he admits he did not inquire very closely. District Attorney Bissecker, therefore, in the usual legal form, had citizens from being wantonly ill used and giving the scalers good advice. If our vessels attempted anything that was unwarranted it might be that the British officers would feel called upon to interfere. The United States sent vessels to the New Foundland fisheries each year to look after American interests, and the British vessels probably had a similar mission in Alaskan waters presuming that they would go there.

The United States naval force at present available in Behring Sea consists of the Bear, the Thetis and a revenue cutter. These vessels are of no use for actual warfare and are simply policemen of the sea. The Adams and the Iroquois are at Mare Island and could be sent to sea at short waived under stress of an emergency it would take some time to fit the Charleston out for service. As has been already stated, however, naval officers do not think the situation at all alarming or even threaten-ing. The Behring Sea fisheries, they are confident, will not precipitate a conflict be-tween the United States and Great Britain.

TURNED UP AFTER THIRTY YEARS. A Harpoon of the 1859 Senson Found in Whale's Blubber.

PETECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. NEW LONDON, CONN., May 30 .- Captain L. Nathan Rogers, an old whaleman of this city, has just returned from a cruise among the oil barrels and try kettles on New Bedford's wharves. He says the absorbing topic among whale fishermen there is the arrival in that city of a harpoon which was taken from a whale captured in the Ochotsk Sea last summer by the bark Cape Horn Pigeon. The iron bore the name of the ill-fated ship Thomas Dickason and was as bright and sharp as when first sunk through the side of the whale. It had been broken off close to the shank and was imbedded in the blubber. This is the first fragment of the Dickason to return to New England after 30 years. She sailed from New Bedford on November 2, 1856, and was lost in the Ochotsk Sea in the summer of 1859.

Captain Rogers, who is well versed in the habits of the levithians of the deep, says the whale must have been struck by the Dickason on her last cruise in those waters. On the iron was the name of the maker. Its brightness is accounted for by the preservative action of the whale's blubber. The whale was a large one and proved a good catch for the Cape Horn Pigeon. Mr. William R. Wing now has the harpoon.

A Determined Negro and a Shotgan Keep Back a Sheriff-Burning the House in Order to Effect His Escape-Finally Captured.

FREDERICKSBURG, VA., May 30.-Deputy Sheriff McDaniel, of King George county, went with a writ of ejectment and undertook to remove Charles Peyton, a negro squatter, from a tenement house belonging to Charles Marmaduke, in the above county. When the Sheriff arrived at the house and made have the house and have the house the house and have the house and have the house th the house and made known his visit Peyton entered the house and in a few moments returned with a double-barreled shotgun, and, leveling it at the Sheriff, forced him to leave, following him some distance from the house, and when leaving him said: "If house, and when leaving him said: "If you come back here again you will get the contents of this gun."

Some time afterward the Sheriff roturned with a posse, and also with another warrant for the arrest of Peyton for resisting an officer. Peyton, who saw them coming, fortified himself and defied arrest with his gun. While the officers were deciding as to the best means to pursue, Peyton set fire to the house with his family in it. He escaped through a rear door and took to the woods while the Sheriff and his posse were rescuing the family and trying to save the building. The family was rescued, but the building and furniture were entirely destroyed. The Sheriff and his posse then left the scene. After procuring another warrant for arson against Peyton, they pursued and captured him yesterday. He has been placed in the county jail.

The "Gladstone" Series

Is the name of a new series of cloth bound books, now in course of publication, which we shall sell at 25 cents a volume. If the theory of the "survival of the fittest" holds good we are confident that these books will supplant all others of the same class. Good paper, large clear type, substantial binding, and an excellent selection of works—these are the four cardinal points in favor of the "Gladstone" series. Naming the series after the great English statesman was also a happy though, and will help to make these books popular. We have received the first installment, which includes:

Pickwick Papers by Charles Dickens.
